National Congress Bulletin

JUNE-JULY 1953 PUBLISHED BY THE NATIONAL CONGRESS OF PARENTS AND TEACHERS • CHICAGO 5 • VOL. 20, NO. 10

Dear P. T. A. Presidents:

TO THOSE of you who have been newly elected to office, a most cordial welcome to the fellowship of P.T.A. presidents. To those of you who served this year and are now retiring, my deep gratitude for your good work. We shall need, and shall count upon, your continued friendship, cooperation, and help. To those of you who are continuing in office, my warm personal greetings as always.

• Together—old officers and new—we face the challenge, the opportunity, and the responsibility of our shared leadership in the parent-teacher organization. Leadership is an opportunity for service and also for personal growth. What we make of the opportunity—how rewarding it will be for others and ourselves—depends largely on how much of our hearts and minds and energies go into our work.

• In order to lead, we must first of all have a warm, sympathetic understanding of our members' thinking, of their feelings, of their beliefs and hopes. This is our first challenge, and it is no small one, for our membership is as various as the land we live in. In my message in the March issue of the National Parent-Teacher (which I hope you subscribe to and read from cover to cover each month), I tried to tell "who we are." Our members come from every section and from every economic and educational level of our great country—from factory, office, farmhouse, and city apartment. We are of every creed, color, and nationality. The magnet that draws us together is our common caring for children and youth. The bond that holds us together is the opportunity that the P.T.A. offers us to make our caring count—through study and action that benefit children and young people.

• The basic step in P.T.A. leadership, then, is to be aware that every P.T.A. is made up of individuals—individuals who have their own ideas, beliefs, hopes, and feelings about things (sometimes very strong feelings). The first duty of a P.T.A. president is to make every individual feel welcome and comfortable and worthy, no matter how widely his opinions and background may differ from those of other members!

• The right of the individual to hold and to express his own beliefs and opinions, and the obligation of every one of us to treat other individuals and their opinions with respect—these are basic principles of democracy and of a democratic organization like the P.T.A.

• This leads us to the next requisite of good leadership. The leader must have a full understanding of the democratic process, must practice democratic procedures and foster their practice by the membership.

• I should like here to bring up some very practical considerations: First, before any controversial issue is put to a vote in the P.T.A., it should be thoroughly discussed and every point of view on it expressed. Full and free discussion and debate are essential to the democratic process. Indeed it is usually wiser to postpone a vote until the next meeting. Then there can be no feeling that a measure has been "railroaded" through or that the action taken does not truly represent the views of the membership.

• Second, I should like to stress—and I do not think it can be overemphasized—

• Mrs. Newton P. Leonard was one of three distinguished citizens recently awarded honorary degrees by Rhode Island University. Carl R. Woodward, president (extreme left), conferred the degrees on Abram L. Sachar (Doctor of Laws), Mrs. Leonard (Doctor of Humane Letters), and Carle M. Bigelow (Doctor of Science) at the sixty-seventh commencement June 8. Dr. Sachar, president of Brandeis University, was one of the featured speakers at our national convention.

that it is not necessary for the P.T.A. as an organization to take official action or "go on record" on every issue or bill affecting child welfare and education. In most instances P.T.A. members can and will take effective action as individuals if they know the issues and the facts. The function of the P.T.A. is to alert its members to the situation or issue and to provide them with factual, unbiased information.

● The P.T.A. must see that all sides of the question are presented fully and impartially. Well-qualified, well-informed persons can be invited to present the various points of view. Then the membership, as individuals, can make up their minds on the basis of sound information. They can, if they like, help others outside the P.T.A. to understand the facts, again as individuals. When the matter comes up for a vote in the community, they can then cast their votes in favor of the action they desire.

● The wise and skillful leader will guide the association to handle controversial issues in this way, thus avoiding divisive actions and bitter feeling. With a sympathetic understanding of the membership's opinions and beliefs, the president can focus the thinking and efforts of the group on an area in which there is mutual agreement and in which there can be fruitful action.

● Finally, let me remind you of another responsibility of your office. A P.T.A. president should not express personal views. When you put on the hat of a P.T.A. president, as it were, you cover the hairdo or haircut that formerly identified you as Mrs. Smith or Mr. Brown. During your term of office you are no longer Mrs. Smith or Mr. Brown; you have become Mr. or Mrs. P.T.A. Henceforth whatever you say will be considered the views of the P.T.A. You must be willing as a P.T.A. president to submerge your own identity and suppress your own views. A selfless devotion is required of each of us.

● Throughout the summer and fall those of you who attended our national convention—more than twenty-five hundred delegates in all!—will have a chance to share your experiences with P.T.A. members at home. As leaders you can extend the knowledge and inspiration of the general sessions, section meetings, and informal get-togethers to that number of members many times multiplied.

● Newly elected to serve as national vice-presidents are (left to right) Mrs. O.S. Fatland of Colfax, Iowa; Mrs. T. J. Mims of Greenville, South Carolina; Mrs. Herman Nordfors of Longview, Washington; and Mrs. Edward T. Walker of Los Angeles, California.

● In closing, let me share with you a stimulating statement I heard recently. "Today," the speaker said, "we need big thoughts, wide vision, compelling devotion." Let our thoughts embrace children everywhere. Let our vision raise up a fairer world. Let our devotion drive us to unceasing effort to make that world a reality for all children.

Loyally yours,

Lucille P. Leonard

MRS. NEWTON P. LEONARD, President
National Congress of Parents and Teachers

CITATION TEXT

● Many readers will be interested in the citation announcing the award of the degree of Doctor of Humane Letters to Mrs. Newton P. Leonard June 8. It states: "Your extraordinary wealth of experience as social worker, teacher, homemaker, parent, and grandparent has fitted you well for the eminent position you now hold as head of a national body of more than seven million parents and teachers. Your conviction that the home and the school together hold the destiny of the nation and your high appreciation of the need for strengthening spiritual values in the building of future generations of Americans underlie a personality which radiates confidence and inspires your associates to unselfish effort. Your leadership on the national level has brought honor and distinction to Rhode Island; and within our state it has done much to create a public consciousness of the duties and responsibilities of the home and a sense of obligation among our citizens to support their educational institutions."

JAPAN REPORTS 12,000,000 P. T. A. MEMBERS!

ONE third of the entire franchised population of Japan is now enrolled in the parent-teacher organization, a recent report from that country reveals. In a span of seven years membership has reached twelve million, making the Japan National Council the largest adult volunteer group in the nation. These figures, dramatic in themselves, point to an even more dramatic development of democracy in Japan since the war.

In March 1946 the United States Education Mission to Japan suggested that the introduction of P.T.A.'s might provide valuable experience in democracy within the educational system. The suggestion met with wide and genuine approval from the Japanese, who spent the next three years organizing associations within their forty-six prefectures. Last fall was the occasion for reviewing their accomplishments and charting a future course.

A spokesman for the council said that it hopes to make Alice McLellan Birney's goal a reality and quotes her remark, "The stage for the P.T.A. is the whole world. The organization of the P.T.A. should be sought by mankind."

In structure the Japanese organization resembles that of the National Congress. It provides for a national president with two aides, a secretary, a treasurer, and vice-presidents from eight regions. Committee programs also parallel those under way in the United States.

Among the council's 1952 goals were the establishment of "Education Week" in Japan and the publication of an official magazine. A parent-teacher manual has already been published. The Japanese are placing current emphasis on consolidating membership gains and developing strong leadership.

The Minister of Education has lent his active support to the movement, which shows promise of opening up new areas in Japanese education.

Moving Ahead with Headquarters

National headquarters as it looked on May 28, 1953, after workmen had reached the third story.

As each week brings our national headquarters a step nearer completion (so that construction photographs are outdated almost as soon as we receive them), state contributions climb steadily higher. This rise suggests the progress of the building itself, which when last we saw it had reached its third-story height. Here, in the order of the amounts, are the states with their outstanding P.T.A.'s.:

	Per member
North Carolina: Henry J. Siler P.T.A., Siler City	$1.77
South Dakota: Hazel P.T.A., Hazel	1.07
Kentucky: Lafayette P.T.A., Lafayette	.78
Virginia: White Oak P.T.A., Fredericksburg	.74
New York: Elma School #6 P.T.A., Elma	.64
North Carolina: Aycock P.T.A., Cedar Grove	.62½
New York: School #62 P.T.A., Buffalo	.60
New York: Purchase P.T.A., Purchase	.60
Oklahoma: Sunset P.T.A., Healdton	.60
Wisconsin: Bark River P.T.A., Nashotah	.60

Work on the new building at 700 Rush Street has attracted the attention of many passers-by, especially those in the construction trades. Recently a writer for a construction journal informed the National Office that he was preparing an article on the building, which has aroused interest because of its efficient basement construction. The basement wall is protected against external pressures occurring in the course of building by steel cables, instead of the timber sometimes used. This permits construction of a water-tight basement wall and also results in a saving in time.

The summer months ahead will be busy ones for the contractors. Next fall we hope to bring our readers definite news of the cornerstone laying, which will be just one step away from realization of our national headquarters.

P.T.A. Objects BOOKMARK

• This handsome fabric bookmark with the parent-teacher Objects woven into it was introduced at our 1953 national convention. Mounted on an attractive greeting-message card, it is enclosed in an envelope suitable for mailing. Every P.T.A. member will treasure one of these bookmarks. It is ideal for favors, holiday greetings, anniversaries, and remembrances of all kinds. Price, 15 cents each. Available from your state congress office, or from the National Office.

A Convention Issue

The September issue of the National Congress Bulletin will bring you an illustrated report of the 1953 national convention, held in Oklahoma City.

WHAT OUR CONGRESS PARENT-TEACHER GROUPS ARE DOING...

• Here are five leaders in the combined parent-teacher and student council drive for a record P.T.A. membership at Central High School. Seated, Mrs. Alfred Nehring, P.T.A. membership chairman, Principal Lawrence Hanson, and the P.T.A. unit president, Mrs. Max M. Gasser. Standing are Judd Blain and Dick Stone, president and vice-president of the Senior Student Council

Joining Hands with the Student Council

Student participation is the secret behind the phenomenal growth of a high school unit in Grand Forks, North Dakota. Within a year its membership has soared 300 per cent, reaching a total of 522 last fall. Mrs. Max M. Gasser, president of Central High P.T.A., attributes the unit's success to the wholehearted cooperation of the senior and junior student councils. Prompted by Mrs. Alfred Nehring, membership chairman, Principal Lawrence Hanson, and Mrs. Gasser, the unit last year arrived at a plan for turning over the annual membership drive to the student councils. They brought not only new numbers from their own and adult ranks but youthful enthusiasm as well, extending to ideas for next year's program. The teaching staff gave its full support. Central P.T.A.'s experience is another example of the growing partnership of students and parents in the high school association.

Planting the P.T.A. Oak

The P.T.A. oak is everywhere to be seen on the school grounds at Middlebush School in New Jersey. Twelve slender young trees were planted last April by P.T.A. members and students, as the adjoining picture illustrates. The objects of this pre-Arbor Day project were to beautify and shade the school grounds, provide the children with a first-hand experience of planting and caring for trees, and mark out a new parking area recently planned by the safety committee.

Each young oak was dedicated to a separate class, which will have the honor of caring for it and guarding it against damage. At the end of a year's time the class whose tree shows evidence of the best care will receive a prize. Mrs. David Housh and her committee organized the project with the help of John Mettler, who donated the trees, and the volunteer fire department, who watered them. We're certain that with such support the oaks will prosper like the movement they symbolize.

Open Road to Health

Out of one P.T.A. member's song-leading experiences at a near-by mental hospital has grown a mental health project involving the entire membership in a unit in the Midwest. Staff heads at this state institution told him how valuable normal communication with the outside world is to patients' recovery, and he confirmed this when he started to conduct group singing there.

Fellow P.T.A. members were inspired by the account of his activities to confer with the hospital staff and begin special training for auxiliary work with patients.

• Pupils at Middlebush School plant oak saplings on the school grounds.

THE Fifty-or-More AND THE Hundred-or-More CLUBS

THIS final list of Fifty-or-More Clubs for 1952–53 reveals much more than an increase in the circulation of the National Parent-Teacher. It discloses that more and more associations are integrating the official P.T.A. magazine with their P.T.A. program for the year. By raising the proportion of readers within their own membership they are ensuring that ideas and projects gleaned from the National Parent-Teacher will go on fertilizing parent-teacher activities in the unit, the council, the district, and the state.

This year 794 associations sent in at least fifty subscriptions to the P.T.A. magazine. Of this number, 163 secured one hundred or more subscriptions per unit. Membership in the clubs has become a tradition for a remarkable number of units: A total of 152 units have maintained an average of fifty or more subscriptions for three years! They will be announced in the September issue of the Bulletin.

AMERICAN EDUCATION WEEK

• "Good Schools Are Your Responsibility" is the general theme for the thirty-third observance of American Education Week, which will be held this year from November 8 to 14. The National Congress, a co-sponsor of the program, has just prepared a pamphlet, Those Who Teach Our Children, which will be included in AEW packets. P.T.A. presidents will receive their copies from their state congresses.

The National Education Association, the American Legion, and the Office of Education, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, are joint sponsors with the National Congress.

Personality in the Making

National Parent-Teacher Study Programs 1953-54

The new parent education study programs, entitled Personality in the Making after the findings report of the Mid-century White House Conference, will be published in the National Parent-Teacher from September 1953 through April 1954. One program will be devoted to adolescence. The other will combine preschool and school-age courses but provide program guides for each age level. To be sure of receiving all issues in this important series, members should send in their subscriptions before September 1, 1953. Price: $1.25 for ten issues, payable to National Parent-Teacher, 600 South Michigan Boulevard, Chicago 5, Illinois.

I. PRESCHOOL AND SCHOOL-AGE

1. Are We "Spoiling" Our Children?
2. How Friendly Is Your Child?
3. Temper, Jealousy, and Obstinacy
4. How To Distinguish Democracy's Child
5. Is My Child Normal?
6. Common Sense and Nonsense About Discipline
7. Matter for Young Minds
8. From the Child's Point of View

• Director of the preschool study program: Dr. Ruth Strang, professor of education, Teachers College, Columbia University. • Director of the school-age study program: Dr. Bess Goodykoontz, director, comparative education, Office of Education, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare

II. THE AGE OF ADOLESCENCE

1. Is This a Time of Conflict?
2. Where Can They Go for Counsel?
3. What Should They Learn About Health?
4. How Strong Is Their Conscience?
5. College or a Job—or Both?
6. Do They Know the Meaning of Excellence?
7. Are They Too Young for Love?
8. What Makes a Good Citizen?

• Directors of the study program on adolescents: Dr. Ralph H. Ojemann, associate professor of parent education, State University of Iowa, and Mrs. Eva Grant, editor of National Parent-Teacher: The P.T.A. Magazine.
